45 (SPLIT A) I am "pro-Israel and pro-peace," and believe that America must consistently support our trusted ally Israel. Part of that support should be helping to promote serious efforts to advance Israeli-Palestinian peace because ending the conflict is vital to Israel's future and security. I disagree with American politicians who make statements, such as demanding we move the U.S. Embassy from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem, that sound supportive of Israel and make vocal activists happy, yet really undermine both peace efforts and America's role as a mediator. I will always work to maintain the special relationship between the U.S. and Israel, and I support policies that help Israel achieve an enduring peace.	37	36	9	7	12	73	16	57

47 Iran poses a serious threat to Israel and to American interests in the Middle East that should be addressed. But President Bush's policies and the Iraq war have actually strengthened Iran's influence in the region while failing to prevent Iran's uranium enrichment program. Unlike George Bush who said talking with our Iranian enemies would be appeasement, I believe America should pursue direct and tough diplomacy that offers incentives for Iran to abandon its nuclear program but also includes consequences like damaging financial and international isolation if they refuse to cooperate.	42	27	9	12	10	69	21	47

48 (SPLIT A) The ongoing Palestinian-Israeli conflict endangers Israel's security and its future as a Jewish and democratic state, and America needs to use our international influence to help lead the parties to peace. 50 Israel is America's greatest ally and we must be very clear in letting the whole world know that Israel has our steadfast support. With Israel facing dangerous threats on a daily basis, it is not our job to second guess how Israel responds. America acts in its own best interest and does best by Israel when our support is unquestioning, standing up for Israel when the international community condemns an Israeli policy and never publicly expressing our disagreements with Israel.	31	29	18	10	12	60	28	32
51 America must do everything it can to protect Israel's security. This means militarily attacking Iran if they pursue a nuclear weapons program, supporting an Israeli pre-emptive strike against Iran, cutting off aid to the Palestinians if their schools allow textbooks that don't recognize Israel, and letting the Palestinians know where we stand on Jerusalem by moving the U.S. embassy from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem.	26	22	20	21	11	48	41	7

Q.72 (SPLIT A) Below are two statements about Christians United for Israel and its leader Reverend John Hagee. One statement comes from supporters of the organization and the other statement comes from opponents of the organization. Both statements are factually accurate. After reading each statement, please mark whether you think Jewish leaders and institutions should form alliances and partnerships with Christians United for Israel and Reverend John Hagee.

Supporters of Christians United for Israel say Christians have a Biblical obligation to defend Israel and the Jewish people's right to all of Biblical Israel. With Iran's President serving as a new Hitler who has threatened to wipe out Israel and America, Christians must do whatever they can to protect Israel's six million Jews from the second Holocaust. This means mobilizing millions of Christians to call on the U.S. government not to pressure Israel to make territorial concessions and making sure initiatives like the recent Annapolis Peace Summit do not lead to American coercion of Israel in future negotiations. As the Bible says, for Zion's sake, we will not hold our peace and for Jerusalem's sake, we will not rest.

Opponents of Christians United for Israel say this is a group with a far right wing agenda, led by Reverend John Hagee whose beliefs and values are offensive to most Americans. Hagee held slave auctions to raise money for his Texas church, referred to the Catholic Church as a "false cult system," and made sexist comments that drew widespread criticism from women's groups across the country. On national radio, Hagee recently said that Hurricane Katrina was God's way of punishing New Orleans for being a sinful city that was scheduled to hold a gay parade. And John McCain recently cut off all ties with Hagee after he said that the Holocaust was part of God's plan to force reluctant Jews to go to Israel.

Q.73 (SPLIT B) Below are two statements about Christians United for Israel and its leader Reverend John Hagee. One statement comes from supporters of the organization and the other statement comes from opponents of the organization. Both statements are factually accurate. After reading each statement, please mark whether you think Jewish leaders and institutions should form alliances and partnerships with Christians United for Israel and Reverend John Hagee.

Supporters of Christians United for Israel say Christians have a Biblical obligation to defend Israel and the Jewish people's right to all of Biblical Israel. As the Bible says, for Zion's sake, we will not hold our peace and for Jerusalem's sake, we will not rest.

Opponents of Christians United for Israel say the organization is a far right wing group led by Reverend John Hagee whose work and close ties with extremists is bad for Israel. Hagee worked to undermine Israel's withdrawal from Gaza and he expressed support for the man who assassinated Yitzhak Rabin because the assassin was motivated by a Biblical imperative to redeem the Land of Israel. Hagee opposes a two-state solution between Israelis and Palestinians or any territorial compromise, he uses his influence with conservative Republicans to undermine any efforts by the U.S. to advance peace, and his organization provides funding to illegal Israeli settlements throughout the West Bank.
